Places Visited

Burgh Island

Burgh Island is an iconic South Devon landmark, located directly opposite Bigbury on Sea beach. The island is accessible at low tide by a strip of sand which at high tide is completely covered, leaving a ride on the unique sea tractor as the only means of access. As well as the sea tractor the island is famed for its links to Agatha Christie, the art-deco inspired Burgh Island Hotel and as well as a onetime haunt for pirates and smugglers. The tidal passageway that separates the mainland from Burgh Island is a beautiful sandy beach and a walk around the island will let you explore the remains of the chapel or discover an abundance of wildlife that lives on its shores.

Crossing to Burgh Island:

This is subject to weather conditions allowing the operation of the sea tractor. At low tide it is also possible to walk the short distance across the sands to Burgh Island so we recommend that you bring suitable footwear for walking across the bay (approx. 500 meters). Should it not be possible to reach the island an alternative lunch on the mainland will be arranged (subject to availability). In this instance a partial refund only of the cost of the lunch on Burgh Island will be made.

Torquay

Torquay, situated on the English Channel in Devon, south west England, its coastline is nicknamed the English Riviera due to the mild climate. Torquay Harbour near the town centre offers shops, cafes and a marina. Torre Abbey, a monastery founded in 1196, has art galleries and extensive gardens featuring plants from local writer Agatha Christie's novels.

Torquay Museum

Travel back through 400 million years of time at Torquay Museum. A wide variety of exhibitions are hosted throughout the year by the Museum, including fascinating exhibitions about South Devon's amazing archaeology, geology and people. Detect your way through Britain's only Agatha Christie gallery at Torquay Museum, which is dedicated to the life story of the Queen of Crime. Re-developed and improved in 2013, the new gallery now enables visitors to step inside Poirot's study and lounge, including furniture, books, pictures and even fireplaces from his beautiful London Art Deco apartment.

Greenway

This relaxed and atmospheric house is set in the 1950s, when Agatha and her family would spend summers and Christmases here with friends, relaxing by the river, playing croquet and clock golf, and reading her latest mystery to their guests. The family were great collectors, and the house is filled with archaeology, Tunbridgeware, silver, botanical china and books. In the garden a large and romantic woodland drifts down the hillside towards the sparkling Dart estuary. The walled gardens are home to a restored peach house and vinery, as well as an allotment cared for by local school children. A visit to Greenway isn't complete without seeing the Boathouse, scene of the crime in 'Dead Man's Folly', and the battery complete with cannon. Greenway has been accredited by the International Camellia Society as a 'Garden of Excellence.' It is the first National Trust garden with this accreditation, and one of just seven gardens in the UK to be recognised as a 'Garden of Excellence' by the International Camellia Society.
