Places Visited

Intelligence Museum

The Military Intelligence Museum displays key elements of the history of British Military Intelligence from the Boer War onwards. The central Collection in the Museum is the Intelligence Corps Collection, which includes artefacts and special exhibits about the history and activities of the Corps as well as two specific displays: one recording the Honours and Awards received by members of the Corps and the other 'In the Name of the Rose,' a memorial to Corps members who have paid the ultimate sacrifice in the service of their Sovereign and their country.

Please note that you must bring your passport for ID in order to enter the Intelligence Museum, without it you will not be allowed to enter.

Bletchley Park

Once Britain's best kept secret, today Bletchley Park is a heritage site and vibrant tourist attraction - the secrecy surrounding all the activities carried on here during World War Two was of vital importance to Britain's national security and ultimate victory. Visitors can explore some of the iconic WW2 Codebreaking Huts and Blocks and marvel at the astonishing achievements of the codebreakers whose work is said to have helped shorten the war by two years.

RAF Tempsford

RAF Tempsford is a former Royal Air Force station and was perhaps the most secretive airfield in the Second World War. RAF Tempsford was home to the Special Duties Squadrons, No. 138, which dropped Special Operations Executive agents and their supplies into occupied Europe, and No. 161, which specialised in personnel delivery and retrieval by landing in occupied Europe. Over 80 aircraft were lost from Tempsford during the war, with many of their crews being killed, so the airfield is of particularly poignant historical and social significance. No Photography allowed.

Gibraltar Farm will also be visited - the final dispatch point of Special Operation Executive Agents.

Shuttleworth Collection

Founded in 1928 by aviator Richard Ormonde Shuttleworth, the Shuttleworth Collection is an aeronautical and automotive museum located at the Old Warden Aerodrome. It is one of the most prestigious in the world due to the variety of old and well-preserved aircraft. The Shuttleworth Collection puts an emphasis on restoring as many aircraft as possible to flying condition, in line with the founder's original intention, and there are typically around 12 shows per year which offer the opportunity to see aircraft which in many cases are the last of their type to survive, let alone existing in flyable condition. The Shuttleworth Collection hopes that visitors will discover a truly awe-inspiring collection of historic aircraft and vehicles dating from the first half of the 20th century.

Carpetbagger Aviation Museum

The Carpetbagger Aviation Museum was formed in 1993. The exhibits within the museum depict the history of the airfield and vividly show the work carried out by the 801st (Provisional) / 492nd Bomb Group, especially during Operation Carpetbagger, and their secret missions to deliver agents and supplies to resistance groups in Occupied Europe during the Second World War. Other displays include the secret work of the British Special Operations Executive from their RAF base at Tempsford; the cold war roles of the airfield at Harrington with the Thor rockets; and the Royal Observer Corps.

Your Speaker

The Guest Speaker will be Dr Mark Baldwin.

Dr Baldwin will provide an authoritative introduction to the history of the Enigma machine, and how it works. This prepares the audience for their forthcoming visit to Bletchley Park, where they will discover how the breaking of the Enigma messages was tackled. Dr Baldwin closes with a look at a single theatre of war – the Atlantic – to show how the intelligence provided by the Bletchley codebreakers had an impact on the way the war was fought.

His lecture, which will take place on the first evening, is titled:

“Enigma, Bletchley Park & the Battle of the Atlantic”
